Add keyboard languages to Mac

The Mac operating system allows users to enter text in different languages. Users can switch from the default language enabled on the Mac computer to another language and then type in the new language. If users require any assistance with the new language keyboard configuration, they can launch the "Keyboard Viewer" tool to highlight the position of various selected language characters and the corresponding keys on the keyboard.

Instructions to change the keyboard language in Mac

Select the System Preference > Language & Tex > Input Sources.

1. Put a checkmark for Keyboard & Character Viewer.
2. Select the language/s that you want from the list.
3. Select Allow a different one for each document, to be able to use different language whenever you desire.
4. Put a checkmark by Show input menu in menu bar, to make all languages you have selected available when you click the Flag icon in the menu bar at the top of the screen. For example, if the U.S. flag is displayed, you can click it and select another keyboard language from the drop-down menu.
Explanation of the items in the flag icon located in the menu bar at the top of the screen

1. The flag icon shows the input language.
2. List of the input languages.
3. Displays the on screen keyboard with the map of the selected language.

On screen keyboard