Nationally and Internationally Accredited Graduate Programs
The Role and Mission CSP
(revised January 2014)

- The Department of Counseling and School Psychology (CSP) promotes a field-based scientist/practitioner model in order to prepare culturally competent and compassionate professionals at the graduate level to provide service and leadership in school psychology, clinical mental health counseling, school counseling and student affairs.

- The focus of the scientist/practitioner model within the CSP department is to create practitioners who understand, critically evaluate and effectively use the research base within their profession in order to make decisions and guide practice.

- CSP is an interdisciplinary department committed to work towards equity and social justice within the College and University, our professions, and throughout the broader society.
The Role and Mission of CSP

- Building on 60 years of history, UNK’s Department of Counseling and School Psychology (CSP) offers flexible and progressive graduate programs with a student-focused learning environment on-site and on-line.

- With our focus on student success and lifetime learning, we’re committed to preparing clinically proficient counselors and school psychologists via state-of-the-art skills labs and comprehensive clinical training.

What do School Psychologists do?

- School psychologists help children and youth succeed academically, socially, behaviorally, and emotionally.
- They collaborate with educators, parents, and other professionals to create safe, healthy, and supportive learning environments that strengthen connections between home, school, and the community for all students.
- School psychologists are highly trained in both psychology and education, completing a minimum of a specialist-level degree program that includes a year-long supervised internship.
- This training emphasizes preparation in mental health and educational interventions, child development, learning, behavior, motivation, curriculum and instruction, assessment, consultation, collaboration, school law, and systems.
- School psychologists must be certified and/or licensed by the state in which they work.
School Psychology Job Outlook

- Employment of school psychologists is projected to grow 20 percent from 2014 to 2024, much faster than the average for all occupations.
- The mean salary of full-time, school-based practitioners in the U.S. is $64,168 for those with 180-day contracts and $71,320 for those with 200-day contracts.
- In 2017, this profession was ranked #1 in Best Social Services Job by U.S. News & World Report.
